

THOMAS J. ALEXANDER FELLOWSHIP PROGRAMME

CALL FOR PROPOSALS
APPLY BY
21 DECEMBER 2012

RESEARCH POLICY EDUCATION FELLOWSHIP EQUITY QUALITY

EMERGING ECONOMIES

Do you have an idea about how to improve quality and equity in education in your country or region?

The OECD's new Thomas J. Alexander Fellowship Programme could give you the time and support you need to conduct research on that idea.

The programme offers funding for qualified candidates to work with international experts on education policy, including a stay at the OECD's headquarters in Paris.

Prospective fellows can:

- be researchers, education practitioners or policy analysts
- come from any field of study
- be from anywhere in the world

The Thomas J. Alexander Fellowship Programme will support individuals in conducting quantitative, evidence-based research on education, particularly in emerging economies, and in linking that research to education policy and practice.

Proposals will be judged based on their originality, promise and scientific rigour. All policy relevant topics will be considered and proposals focusing on equality of opportunity are encouraged.

WE LOOK FORWARD TO READING YOUR PROPOSAL!

Applications will be accepted on line through the OECD website:

<http://oecd.org/about/careersattheoecd/>

For more information on the programme, visit:

<http://oecd.org/pisa/fellowship.htm>

If you have questions, you can reach us at:

edu.fellowships@oecd.org

